

Winners of the E-Learning Awards 2008

The who's who of the e-learning industry gathered at the Park Lane Hotel in London on 6 November 2008 to learn who would take home the prizes. 13 award categories produced a record 20 winners, with a further 6 organisations receiving commendations and special mentions.

The E-Learning Awards were presented by TV's Science Correspondent, Angela Lamont. Representatives of our Sponsors presented the last few Awards.

Autology

Silver Winner

Most Innovative New Product or Tool in E-learning

- Judges' Citation

Autology demonstrated how technology taken from one sector can be applied to the schools market to aid course work and referencing of material much more effectively than traditional browser technology. Using additional download tools, Autology illustrated how teachers and students can easily reference material to aid essays and course work that is appropriate to the student they are studying. The judges were very impressed with the actual and potential benefits to schools.

